

TEACH AFRICA: A WEBINAR SERIES

February 8th
February 15th
February 22nd

3:30 PM - 4:30 PM

Co-sponsored by the Connecticut State Department of Education, the Connecticut Council for the Social Studies, and the MacMillan Center at Yale

The webinar series will provide content knowledge, teaching strategies, and teaching materials so that teachers can effectively educate about this critical region of the world. This series intends to assist instructors of all levels to either begin or strengthen their teaching on the region. The series will also be archived for those who cannot participate live. Partial funding is made possible through a Department of Education Title VI Grant.

Discussion next week (March 8th) will focus on Why Teach on Africa? as well as Global Public Health Concerns.

After the content is presented on each topic, a discussion of implementation at both the high school and middle school levels will follow.
